BLAMES CREDIT BUYING FOR HIGH FOOD PRICES

R. L. Neuhouser, president of the Washington branch of the American Institute of Banking, addressed the students of Business High School yesterday on "Thrift."

"One of the greatest aids in the reduction of the high cost of living will be to impress upon householders the folly of buying supplies upon credit," he said. "It will mean a tremendous reduction in the number of people who willfully or otherwise fail to meet their obligations and for whom the honest customer must pay."

MISSING GIRL FOUND; LURED TO TENEMENT

Mother and Sisters Severely Beat Man Who Is Discovered Under Cot.

Special to The Washington Herald. New York, March 9.—While detectives and police have been scouring the city in vain for weeks for the missing Ruth Cruger, relatives and friends of two other missing girls have been successful in their efforts.

Since Anna Sullivan disappeared on March 1, from her home, her several married sisters and her mother, Mrs. Anna Sullivan, had been searching hard for her. A schoolgirl friend told the relatives that she was certain she had seen Anna's face at a basement window in East One Hundred and Seventeenth street.

Mother and sisters searched that street until No. 30 they were certain they had heard Anna's voice within. The basement door of an old tenement was broken in. Detectives found the missing girl on a cot, while under it was a man who said he was Fred Tork.

As detectives pulled the man from under the cot he rose with a club and attacked the detectives. The police had little opportunity to handle Tork, because the girl's mother and her sisters attacked him. Before the detectives could rescue him he had suffered a beating so severe that the services of an ambulance physician were required.

The girl said he had been giving her candy almost daily and on March 1 lured her into the basement, where he had held her a prisoner. Victoria Rubenstein a year ago ran away, and her mother found her dancing in a Coney Island resort and took her home. On Monday night three men in an automobile stopped at her house and she jumped in and was driven away.

One of the most persistent searchers for her was Samuel Scheinberg, 18, a jewelry salesman, who thought he was going to marry her Monday night. In his searches Scheinberg saw Victoria in a motion picture theater in One Hundred and Sixteenth street, called the police and she was sent to her home. Victoria then told Scheinberg she would not marry him, that she had found another "boy" and she refused to tell her mother where he had been.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS TO TENT ON WHITE LOT

All Meetings During Reunion Week Will Be Held Under Huge Canvas.

The Confederate Veterans will receive one of the biggest receptions ever tendered them when they assemble in Washington for the twenty-seventh annual reunion, to be held in June, according to Col. Robert N. Harper, chairman of the general citizens' committee.

A meeting of the board of directors of the general committee was held yesterday afternoon in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce. Committees which were named last fall for all branches of the work for the reunion were set to work to carry out the plans of the general committee.

It is planned by Charles T. Claggett, chairman of the entertainment committee, to erect a tent on the monument grounds with a seating capacity of about 10,000 people. The purpose of erecting a tent in preference to securing a large hall, Mr. Claggett pointed out, is the convenience afforded the older men by having everything on the ground floor. All meetings would be held in the tent.

The Inaugural committee through Col. Harper, offered to the citizens' committee as decorations for the reunion the decorations used on Pennsylvania avenue as the court of honor.

As a method of advertising the reunion of Confederate Veterans, the Postoffice will stamp all mail going out of the District with a special stamp.

The headquarters of the general committee will be at the Chamber of Commerce, Twelfth and F streets. The headquarters of the Confederate Veterans will be at the Willard Hotel. The former office of the Washington Herald will be used as the headquarters of the publicity committee.
